TUESDAY, JUNE 16, 1914.

An Evening Echo.

I go at what I am about as if there was nothing else in the world for the time. That is the secret of all hard-workingmen.—C. KINGSLY.

The Connellsville, Pa., Courier very pertinently observes that psychological prosperity does not pay grocery bills.

"Have we a Bismark?" asks the Wheeling Telegraph. Of course we have, in the person of Dollar Bill Bryan. Hal ha! Everybody laugh.

What Caused It.

The New York Times, the recent overwhelming vote in Pennsylvania is due to the following Democratic acts:

A tariff that has decreased exports, increased importation of manufactured articles, a tariff for revenue that has produced a deficiency of revenues; the Democratic policy of muddle-and-muddle, foreign and domestic; foot attacks on business here and an unfeeling, grotesque, shuffling, barnstorming, spineless policy as to Mexico.

The Democratic party of Harrison county in recent years has pretended to have great love and respect for labor. Officially, however, the party ignores organized or union labor as shown by the hand bills recently sent out by the county chairman and the county secretary calling attention to the district conventions to be held tomorrow. Those posters do not bear the union label and there is no indication whatever of the slightest friendliness to union labor. Organized labor and its sympathizers should not overlook this fact.

That Hypocritical Love.

Harrison county Democrats are so overjoyed over the fact that there is now a Progressive county ticket in the field that they cannot control themselves. They feel certain now of Democratic victory and they are patting the Progressives on the back and giving them heartiest handshakes.

However, the campaign has just begun and things are likely to happen before it nears the end which will set the Democrats to gnashing and denouncing the Progressives.

Whether anything of the kind occurs or not, Progressives should not delude themselves into believing that this hypocritical Democratic friendship means that Democrats will support the Progressive ticket. It means nothing of the kind. Democratic love for Progressives is based on the selfish hope that the Progressives may be the means of bringing about Democratic victory.

There is Another Reason.

From that community over on the edge of the state where the Parkersburg Sentinel is published comes the following sapient explanation in the columns of that newspaper:

"If we had a representative in Congress more inclined to action than to words we might have arrangements made for a federal building large enough for the business handled in it, and then no federal offices would have to be moved away."

This is the first intimation the Telegram has had that the local federal building, which is smaller than the one at Parkersburg and is considerably more crowded, was the inducement for the removal of the United States marshal's office to this city from Parkersburg. The Sentinel is chewing sour grapes and is therefore in a somewhat acerbic frame of mind; but it is entitled to another guess. If it reflects a while longer it may stumble upon the real reason.

Where Business is Good.

In their fruitless search for communities in which business is good and where depression through its existence does not have to be explained upon the basis of psychology, the president and members of his cabinet have overlooked one place at least which is booming because of the enactment of the new tariff law, says the Uniontown, Pa., Herald. The report is to be found in a government publication, the Daily Consular and Trade Reports, for May 27, on page 1124. It is sent by Consul Charles M. Freeman, Sidney, Nova Scotia. Though they have failed to keep

American mills and American labor employed at the former rate, though they have failed to lower the cost of living as confidently promised, though exports from this country have fallen off tremendously, though gold exports have tremendously increased, though depression has followed the enactment of the new tariff, they have at least one reason for rejoicing. They have rescued Sidney from the depths of industrial stagnation and "at present the prospects are excellent for the year's business."

What boots it if our workmen are working on reduced time or not at all? What's the difference if America is suffering from what has been done and what is threatened to be done? Why not rejoice over the boom at Sidney, Nova Scotia? It is a part of the great British empire now recipient of so much solicitude care at the hands of the present administration. Not only has it determined to turn the Panama canal over to England, but it has brought prosperity and good cheer to Sidney. Though it has slackened every mill in the Pittsburgh district and has closed down thousands of ovens in this region, it has made it possible for many a man at Sidney to go home to his family on Saturday night with a fat pay envelope. Here is the dry consular report, eloquent as it is with what the Democratic administration has done for the foreigner at the expense of American citizens:

Owing to a lack of orders, caused by a general depression of the iron business, in the latter part of 1913, two of the Dominion Iron and Steel Company's furnaces were closed down, and other departments of that plant run on short time. This continued into the present year, and, as the city of Sidney has only one major industry, it seriously affected all commercial enterprise. Never since Sidney became a city has so great a stagnation of business been felt. During the first three months of the present year but one building permit was issued.

At present conditions have improved, and the steel plant (as noted in the Daily Consular and Trade Reports for March, 1914,) is reaching out for a more varied business and a larger field. For the first time since its establishment this company is shipping its products to the United States and is taking advantage of the reduction in the American tariff.

It has already, within the last two months, shipped to the United States three cargoes of pig iron, which under the tariff of 1909 paid a duty of $2.50 per ton. The putting on the free list of pig iron allows the Dominion Iron and Steel Company to dispose of its products at a profit in a market where formerly it was unable to compete. This outlet for iron and steel products, together with the large rail and mail shipments to Australia and New Zealand, in conjunction with the Canadian market, has changed the outlook for the company, and at present the prospects are excellent for the year's business.

What affects this company is felt throughout the entire community, and good business is expected for the last six months of 1914.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

Not Buried.

A hundred years hence some one will be digging along the New England shore for the buried treasure of the New Haven pirates.—Wheeling News.

Have to Hurry.

If Tom Lipton expects to lift a cup the Boston Transcript advises him to hurry over and do it before the prohibitionists make it unlawful.—Wheeling Register.

General Impression.

Government employees at Washington are loud in their demands for pensions, but the general impression is that they get one while their salaries last.—Bluefield Telegraph.

Psychologically He Could.

Secretary Redfield is to have shipments of food sent to Vera Cruz to be sold at reasonable prices. Wonder if he couldn't do something of the kind for this country.—Wheeling Telegraph.

Develops Later.

Congressman Neely has at last brought to the attention of Congress the charges impeaching Judge Dayton. What attention Congress will pay to them is one of the matters that will develop later.—Charleston Mail.

We Hope So.

Now, if President Wilson can convince Secretary Bryan that his inability to live on his salary as a cabinet officer is a mere psychological hallucination, that loquacious official may decide to give up the lecture platform and stick to the nation's business.—Huntington Herald-Dispatch.

Tried to Be Fair.

Bluefield Times, we have tried to be fair in discussing the Wilson administration. You will not find any calamity howl in this paper. We have said over and over the Democracy did well the first year it was in power. But it has now broken away in an awful and injurious manner. We commend what we think is right, even when it is done by Democrats, and certainly propose to oppose such blunders as repealing free tolls in the Panama canal for American coastwise shipping, and the way we reap all the evils of war without getting any of the benefits of the same.

In the first proposition we have the pleasure, too, of being with such leading Democrats as Champ Clark, Underwood and O'Gorman and in the last it is difficult to see why everybody does not agree with us.—Parkersburg State Journal.

THE DAILY NOVELETTE

ANNA PETRUNKA—A TRAGEDY.

She dived a dove of perfect grace: She dove a dive, submerged her face. She sank a sunk of weighty joy, Alas, fair maid! Ho, ship ahoy!

(Translated from the Norwegian.) The family of Anna Petrunka was all agog.

The family of Anna Petrunka on the quiver. Anna Petrunka, the only lady life saver on the wild and forbidding Norway coast, was that afternoon to give a public exhibition of diving and coming up again.

Anna Petrunka, their Anna, who had won 678 medals for saving lives, was to do this.

Joy! Two joys!!

Low grey clouds lowered lumpy. It was a typical day. All Norway, it seemed, was there at the sea to see.

To see Anna Petrunka dive and come up again for exhibition. Anna Petrunka glistened, coruscated, with her 678 medals.

Ah! She is diving! She has given!

III. Anna Petrunka never came up again.

The weight of her 678 medals kept her down.

(The end.)

MOUNT CLARE

MT. CLARE, June 16.—Class No. 2 of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday school, under the leadership of its teacher, Carl Workman, gave a lawn fete upon the paragon grounds on last Saturday evening, which proved to be a financial success. A good sum of money was realized, which will go to help swell the fund that is being raised in payment of the new piano recently installed in the church.

A very pretty and well prepared Sunday evening to a large audience in the Methodist Episcopal church, in which all the participants did their parts well. The music was especially complimented.

The locusts, which have been very numerous and noisy in this vicinity for the past two weeks, for some reason remained silent all day Sunday. They seemed to have greater regard for Sabbath observance than some of our most intelligent citizens.

Edward Mott Woolley has written a little book which every business man should read. It describes that wonderful organization of 127 clubs and 10,000 members, the Associated Advertising Clubs of America, whose emblem is shown above. It tells how these earnest and militant clubs have fought with successful vigor against fraudulent and deceitful advertising and unfair and unsound business conditions. It also tells of the plans for the Tenth Annual Convention of the A. A. C. of A., to be held Toronto, June 21-25. Write for a copy of this booklet, and information as to the rates for accommodations during Convention week. Address

Convention Bureau Association Advertising Clubs Of America Toronto, Canada.

TUBERCULOSIS

In addition to plenty of fresh air and proper diet, those suffering from or who are predisposed to Tuberculosis are recommended to use Eckman's Alternative to stop night sweats, banish fever and hasten recovery. This medicine, by reason of its successful use during the past, warrants the fullest investigation possible by every sufferer. Eckman's Alternative is most efficacious in bronchial catarrh and severe throat and lung affections, and in up-building the system. It contains no narcotics, nor harmful or habit-forming drugs. Accept no substitutes. Sold by leading druggists. Write to the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries.

Severe Attack of Colds Cured.

E. E. Cross, who travels in Virginia and other Southern States, was taken suddenly and severely ill with cold. At the first store he came to the merchant recommended Chamberlain's Cough, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Two doses of it cured him. No one should leave home on a journey without a bottle of this preparation. For sale by all dealers.—Advertisement.

The two light rains have relieved vegetation to some extent; but the potato crop will be very short without much more rain.
